focused on the propagandist as a sender of messages: Propaganda is an art requiring special talent. It is not mechanical, scientific work. Influencing attitudes requires experience, area knowledge, and instinctive judgment of what is the best argument for the audience. No manual can guide the propagandist.

What Is Propaganda, and How Does It Differ From Persuasion?

The master propagandist by Henrik Bering. On Jacques-Louis Davidâ€™s moral foibles. Share. When we think of propaganda art, images of Soviet Stakhanovites furiously exceeding their production quotas, heroic tractor drivers on their mighty machines, and fresh-faced collective farm girls in abundant wheat fields fill the mind. Above it all ...
